The end of the Republic (1939)

The Nationalist army occupied Barcelona on January, 26, and in the following ten days conquired the whole Catalonia.

About 500.000 soldiers and civilians escaped to France, where they were housed in refugee camps.

The Republican postal service worked until the first days of February: straight after, the Nationalist stamps and tariff were current.

Madrid was conquired on March, 28, and all the Republican territories were conquired not later then the end of March.

The Republican stamps, in these newly conquired territories, were current until March 31.
